And there's no Super boy in this world.' Daniel kicked the robber's butt. However, the robber hit Daniel on his face and he fainted.

Dear Mrs. Lam,

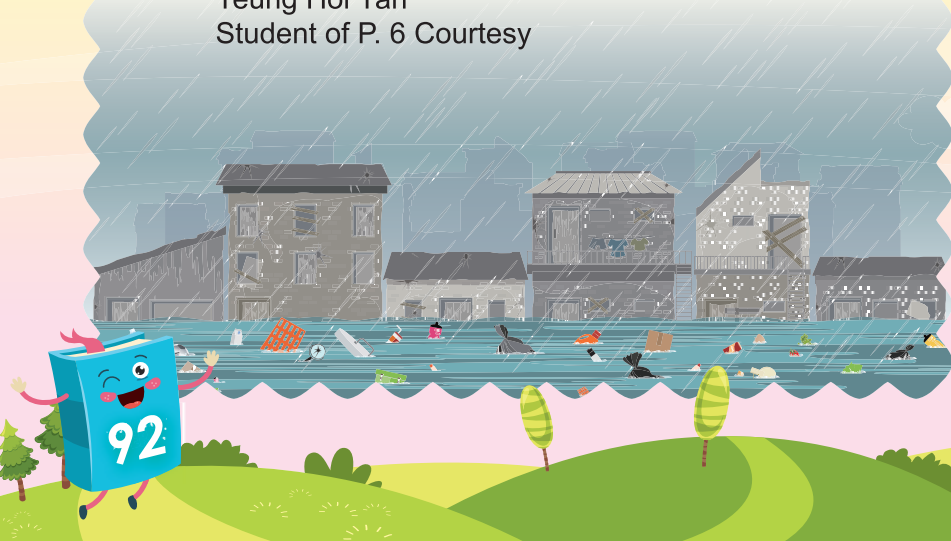

We are writing because our class would like to raise money for the people in Japan. We think our ideas will help solve some problems for them.

There was a serious typhoon in Japan. The people are living in a very bad condition. The typhoon destroyed many houses so people need to stay in shelters. The people are hungry and thirsty because there is very little water and food. When the people get sick, there are very few doctors and nurses to take care of them.

We would like to run a second-hand stall. We sell old toys and books to raise some money. The money will be sent to charity. We would also like to perform a drama and a magic show. We sell tickets for raising money which will be sent to charity, too.

We hope you will be able to help us organize the charity events.

Yours sincerely,

An Accident in the Restaurant

6 Faith Wan Tsz Ching

This afternoon, I went to a new restaurant which was near my home with Grandma. The restaurant was clean and spacious. The waiter was polite. He gave us some menus and led us to the table while we were chatting happily. We were delighted.

After a while, we decided to order chicken noodles and cups of lemon tea. While we were looking at the menus, I accidentally dropped my handkerchief on the floor but I didn't notice it.

Soon the waiter came with the food. Unluckily, he stepped on my handkerchief and tripped. The bowls of noodles fell off from his tray and spilt onto my grandma's shirt. I was so frightened that I screamed. I was afraid that she would get hurt.

Luckily, the soup wasn't too hot. Grandma was fine and she cleaned herself up in the washroom. The waiter felt so sorry and apologized. We didn't blame him. He gave us a free lunch. We were so glad!

From this accident, I have learnt to be more careful with my possessions and keep my things neatly in the bag all the time. I hope I won't make such mistake again next time.

A Strange Dream

6 Hope Wong Hei Yau

Last night, I had a strange dream. It was amazing!

First, I fell into a big pool filled with pizzas, chips and chocolate! I ate a lot and could not stop. Just a moment, my tummy became bigger and bigger and could not move. Then, I was chased by a lot of big mice. I was too full at that time so I could not escape.

Luckily, I found a house to hide in a split second. This house was very interesting. On the first floor, I needed to answer a series of Maths questions. Then I could move to the second floor.

On the second floor, I had to play some classic video games there such as Pac-Man, Donkey Kong etc. If I could pass all the levels, I could get a free trip to Japan! So I tried hard to win.

Suddenly, I was woken by an alarm. I got up and found an air ticket to Japan. I wondered, 'Is that true? It is the same in my dream! Can anyone tell me what is happening?'

6 Hope Tsang Hoi Yan

At recess, I was walking around the playground and chatting with my friend when we passed an area which gathered a lot of people. I saw that many students were staring at me with a strange look. Someone pointed at me and whispered with their friends. I did not know what was up but I pretended that there was nothing wrong with me and walked past the playground with my friend.

The bell rang and we decided to go back to the line. My friend suddenly said, 'Oh dear!' Then I asked, 'What's wrong?' 'Look at your back.' My friend shouted. I turned around and found that my belt released from my uniform! It was hanging back my waist and looked like a tail. I gasped and quickly took it off quickly from the uniform. My face turned red and felt embarrassed.

This was an awful experience. That was the reason why all the students stared at me with a strange look. It is my most embarrassing moment that I will never forget.
